

Abstract

5

The present invention is a transportable grill for accompanying a user to a remote event, such as a sports match. The transportable grill may include a lateral element and a vertical element, wherein the lateral element is adapted to be engaged to a receiver on a vehicle. The lateral element may additionally be provided with structure to 10 allow the position of the lateral element to be adjusted relative to the vertical element, such that the vertical element and grill unit may raised or lowered relative to the vertical element to assist in positioning the transportable grill for engagement to a receiver.